

History

At Stephen Freeman CP School we believe in a creative curriculum which offers children the opportunity to study their topics through more cross curricular planning and activities. In doing this we are able to create a more personalised curriculum and encouraging a lifelong love of learning. By using the local area, school trips and out of classroom learning experiences, children's motivation levels are raised which will help with progress across all curriculum areas.

By following the National Curriculum for History we aim to:

- develop pupils curiosity about the past in Britain and the wider world.
- encourage a deeper understanding of how past events influence the present.
- develop children's chronological awareness of significant events.
- give pupils a range of skills so they feel confident in asking questions and investigating their own ideas.
